Acinetobacter virulence is highly dependent on cell-surface lipopolysaccharide (LPS), which is mainly composed of O-polysaccharide, and its functions as a major colonization factor. However, the pathogenesis of these bacteria remains largely unknown. In the present study, the polysaccharide portion of the lipopolysaccharide (LPS), the s-LPS (ca. 130 kDa), was purified from Acinetobacter.

Removal of s-LPS significantly reduced the anti-bacterial activity of the LPS, suggesting that the polysaccharide portion of Acinetobacter s-LPS contributes to its LPS-mediated pathogenicity. Furthermore, s-LPS was found to increase the adhesion of Acinetobacter to Caco-2 cells. This is the first report indicating that s-LPS (E-PS) of Acinetobacter plays a role in virulence. We've had a lot of thread on the subject, but never a statement from AIM using the word "affair" or even "relationship". I know there's no definition of the word "affair" in the dictionary, but is there any harm or reason to call it something else? Not that I know of. What harm can come from calling it an "affair" as opposed to "relationship"? Nothing. Not even any "opposition between the two groups". As for the official word, in the past I was referred to as "My wife...(the heretic) and then in recent years (when a birth control pill had "penis" as it's main side effect) on my swinger forums as "My husband (the pill boy) and I". This should be posted here too. As the definition of "affair" has no definition in the dictionary, it's not to say it's wrong to refer to it that way. It's "being in an affair" that is wrong

[UPDATE BELOW] A lead: More than a thousand criminal cases have been closed because the Rikers Island jail complex is so overwhelmed by Superstorm Sandy that a city agency must post guards inside to prevent prisoners from running from their cells into nearby streets, the Post reports. According to the district attorney's office, the criminal courts are being "overwhelmed" by court filings and it's getting harder to provide courthouses with the equipment they need to hold trials, but, noted district attorney's spokesperson Larry Krasner, "at the same time, the courts have to continue to hold trials." Said spokesperson Krasner: "In every municipality, the inherent but unintended consequence of natural disasters like Superstorm Sandy is that courts are closing. At the same time, the courts have to continue to hold trials." The massive storm has killed at least 38 people across the region, as of this afternoon, and displaced more than 250,000 residents and closed the city's transit system. NYCHA has estimated that about 150,000 people have been without power, heat, or hot water in buildings hit by Sandy. City Hall is closed today, and many municipal agencies are also closed. As many as 100,000 residents could be without power for up to ten days. And the condition of the city's jails has prompted prison reform activists to call for their evacuation, many of which have been flooded since midnight. No kidding. I think its time to start a massive exodus from Rikers IslandJail. As for me...I will be playing basketball downtown until the water recedes. — Dead Prez (@PrezDead) October 30, 2012 Older tweets here. UPDATE, 10:30 a.m.: Here are the latest developments Occ13bf012
