e Style My very own personal version of Around The World in Eighty Days. At the moment I am living in my first country, the Netherlands. I woke up on my first morning in Sunnyside, Amsterdam with a face swollen and in immense pain all over. My back and shoulders hurt, and my head felt so heavy that I was even afraid to fall asleep. It took me nearly three hours to get up from my bed, and most of those hours were spent in a lot of pain. It was the day of my transfer from Jersey to Holland, and I think back to that day when my eyes suddenly opened up to a land I've longed for all my life. First of all, I do not speak a word of Dutch. After having lived eight years in a bilingual/bicultural country, I'm still hoping to adapt in this language, but I'm certainly not going to force it. Secondly, I'm an introvert and would rather sleep than talk all day, especially if it's to someone else. But as the days went, they became the longest of my life. I would spend several hours walking to work, then up until 11 in the morning, spend hours of making photocopies, and walking back to home. Everybody would try to make me go on a lesson once it was lunch time, but the amount of pain I was going through was making any form of me sitting on my bottom to study quite impossible. Last night I was sent home exhausted. You may be wondering, "How is a girl supposed to make money as a cleaner in Holland, when people pay more money for a meal at a restaurant than what I make in an entire day?" But you have to think of how much money you have to do the same as what I do in days. The fact is, you only have to make a call-back once and you can get another job. I did not have to have a job for many years in order for me to move to Holland, and I am still technically receiving income in America, but to an extent, it is making me want to move home more and more. Love This Island. Another effect on my struggle to adapt in a new country. I am coming from a place where the children play outside. It does not matter what the weather does, the children will play in it. It's a country where you have those vans instead

"Descent into Darkness" is a classic style Bullet-Hell Dungeon Crawler with a twist. It's a random, action-packed, puzzle-solving, special-effects-packed dungeon crawling adventure with (maybe) a twist. You are a Magus of the Covenant. You have one goal: to destroy the heretic sorceress who was born out of the wrong lab experiment. You have been sent to the Penimorta Prison by the High Queen for coming up with such a horrible plan, but all those years of hard work have barely begun to prepare you for the horrors you are about to encounter. The entire structure of Penimorta is full of dangerous, mad and weird occupants, all craving your blood, and ready to execute any prisoners to extend their very long lives. Meanwhile, you are required to complete a series of hard puzzles that will test your skills in evasion, speed, stealth, blast, and even... computation! Your reward will come with the satisfaction of bringing down the sorceress, and the knowledge that in doing so, you will finally become the archetypical Warrior, succeeding where so many have failed. Players can select from six distinct characters and two distinct play styles: Three Difficulty Levels, and Four Game Modes (Single Player only). Each character can be leveled up and equipped with a variety of weapons and armor. Each mode can be played in any of three different difficulty levels. There are four game modes: Story Mode - "Ghost of the Past" Arcade Mode - "The Spirit World" Challenge Mode - "Power of the Dark Magi" Sandbox Mode - "Only You Can Save the World" A single playthrough of "Ghost of the Past" will take approximately 15 minutes to complete. Each of the other modes are roughly 30 minutes. Various improvements and bug fixes have been made for your convenience. You can now play on the Windows 98/ME/2000/XP operating systems, as well as the Mac. Enjoy! Performance Descent into Darkness will run on the older operating systems, such as Windows 98/ME/2000/XP, and will also run on Macs if you have a PowerPC processor. Technical Support for the Mac has been greatly improved. Thanks to Spence Sharkey for the assist! Sharing Descent into Darkness has never been easier to share with your friends. Simply follow the directions on the download page, and download the "Helper" for your operating system
